For many, the U10 level serves as a true entry point into competitive play for girls' hockey teams. It is a key stage of development for young hockey players as they start to understand how to read and react better to the game at hand. They will learn that there isn't only one play or decision to make in a given situation. Their skating and overall skillset grows considerably at this level. For an extra fee, the girls will have the option of doing an extra off-ice and on-ice skills session with Glenview Youth Teams and/or participating in a dry land program at Progressive Sports Performance. If they are interested, U10 girls may double roster on a coed, youth team.
