

Coaching Points

The idea of achieving success is a vital component in education. Therefore, I came across this formula for success that is consistent throughout the US Coaching curriculum. Within the coaching curriculum I always set challenges for my players, which will enhance motivation and determination throughout the skills & competitions.

If the players are not having fun the coach is not doing their job correctly.

The players are there to learn, but most of all they should be learning while having fun in a good and safe environment, which encourages them to improve and also succeed.

- S Stimulate & Motivate
- U Understanding & Appreciate
- C Create a Fun-Filled action Environment
- C Communicate at player's level
- E Emphasize on individual and team improvement
- S Strive for self-Improvement
- S Self Expression

For the Good of the Game

1. Play to win but never forget the players developing in game environments.
2. Play Fair
3. Accept Defeat with dignity
4. Observe the laws of the game
5. Respect opponents, teammates, officials and spectators

Here are a few more ways of getting ahead in Soccer Education:

Webinars, Coaching Manuals, Videos, Visual Skill downloads on You Tube.

Book Knowledge – Read more books online or in paper form.

Get to know other coaches and talk tactics.

Coaches should be aware that parents as well as the players often require education. Teaching the parents that players dribble, pass, shoot, clear, cross, rather than simply kick the ball and run shows a higher degree of thought process involved during the game.
