

JR PACER FOOTBALL UPDATE -- July 23, 2020

I hope and pray all is well and that your families are safe and healthy! I've got some news to share with you with regard to our upcoming football season.

Last night I attended a Greater Metro Milwaukee Youth Football League (GMMYFL) Zoom meeting. At the time, we didn't know when football was going to start, if at all, but the league agreed that each team can practice and play if allowed to by their respective schools and local health departments.

This morning, the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletics Association (WIAA) Board of Control met and determined that high school football would be delayed until a September 7th start date. In my mind this is very good news as the alternatives were moving football to the spring or not having football at all.

My guess is that the GMMYFL will meet again very soon to figure out what kind of a schedule can be put together for games. Seeing as the league is very spread out geographically, it may be tough to play a full regular season worth of games. However that shakes out, we are committed to offering some kind of football experience for your boys this fall.

If you have changed your mind about your son playing football this fall, please let me know. On the other hand, if you know of other people who might be interested in joining us now that we have a better idea of what's going on this fall, please let me know.

If you have questions or concerns, please feel free to contact me. Thanks again for your commitment to Jr. Pacer Football!
