Coaching Philosophy:

In addition to coaching Cecy is an educator in our local school district. She believes teaching and coaching are very similar in that child development is a key factor in their success. She wishes to develop technical and tactical players, while challenging them to play "next level" soccer. Her goal is to create well rounded players on and off the field. Cecy firmly believes that although players are learning the game, coaching are also teaching them life-long lessons; such as, how to be a leader and/or a follower, understanding body language speaks volumes, making mistakes is okay, how to control emotions, setting and achieving goals, success requires hard work, how to win with class and lose with dignity, success requires sacrifice, identifying ones strengths and weaknesses, how to deal with pressure and stress, and understanding there will be tough times.
